COLUMBIA AND BLUEJAYS IN NIP AND TUCK RACE OFF HALIFAX

Down away for the second mark. Blue continued with his sheets close-hauled for at least five minutes. Bluejays seemed to be increasing her lead, with the wind heading to the south, and it was evident that the third leg would prove the real test of the race. The competing schooners reaching for the second mark were encountering a rising sea.

At 1:15 Bluejays seemed to have increased her lead. Official time at the second mark:

Blue.....1:09:42
Columbia.....1:09:00

Close hauled on the third leg, Columbia appeared to point higher than defender, proving the foats, as fast both vessels were carrying everything.

At 1:35 both schooners were still on the starboard tack. There seemed to be little or no change in their respective positions. Both skippers seemed to be giving their vessels a good full on account of the head sea. Columbia, if anything, was pointing higher than Bluejays but did not appear to be forcing any faster. Challenger was pointing quite heavily in the moderate sea.

NEARING THIRD MARK.
At 1:55 Bluejays had worked up to weather of Columbia and was maintaining a lead of half a mile. The lead Sunco lightship, buoy beam and indications were that she would come about shortly to fetch her third mark. It was apparent the race would be finished well within the time limit unless the wind failed. At 1:55 both schooners were still standing on the starboard tack. It looked as though Bluejays had over- sailed the third mark and there was a chance of Columbia cutting down her rival's lead if she tacked at the right time and was able to fetch the mark.

At 1:55 Bluejays came about and headed for the third mark, followed immediately by Columbia.

SHIP VICTIM MAY BE HUB MAN

Vineyard Haven, Oct. 28.—Two men from dimensions in the motor launch Vinesse, after it ran ashore on the island of Martha's Vineyard were still in that condition at a hospital here today. The hospital authorities said they had received word from Mrs. Arthur W. White of Boston, believed to be the wife of the younger of the men, that she would come here.

The men's condition was declared serious and doctors said that they might not recover consciousness for several days. Their condition is attributed to the breathing of gas- ine fumes from the launch's engine.

bricks before they could get at the fire as the fumes stopped all from entering the cellar. It was while trying to reach the flames through a passageway into the cellar that the firemen were overcome. After a six-hour fight the flames were extinguished with estimated loss of $10,000.

While the firemen were fighting the fire in the cellar the water was shut off by mistake and the men were overcome by the smoke and steam. Ladderman Hall, one of the tallest members of the department, groped his way to a window and called for help.

Homeowner Edward Lynch, James O'Hara and Edward Murray responded and dragged the firemen out through the window.

The firemen were standing in three feet of water fighting the fire and the flooring became shaky. District Chief Wilfred Young ordered the men out of the building. A short time later a section of the flooring gave way and dropped into the cellar.

John Seizes Cop's Billy, Yells for Action and Gets it---in the Neck!

John Purcell of Arlington street, South End, believes in a fair fight. So John, when he met a policeman early today, took the cop's club from him and tossed it into the gutter. Then he started to clean up said officer.

John made a bad error of judgment, for he did not know that Joseph First, the policeman, knew a few tricks in the art of wrestling. Joe pulled one of the tricks on him and then John spun through the air and landed in a sitting posture on the sidewalk with no right left.

According to the police, John was walking down Washington street, near Broadway, South End, when he met Mrs. Lettie Johnson. Without warning, the police say, John struck Lettie. She screamed and Patrolman First ran to the rescue.

Local officers start for New York today to take charge of Brogan, who will be brought here for trial. They hope to find the other man and the girls.

WIFE TO NAME SOCIETY WOMAN

Wife of the Rev. Thomas Reed Bridges, formerly of Newport, whose counter-suit for divorce is being heard today in the Rhode Island city. It is expected that the name of a prominent society woman may be brought into the case in connection with Mrs. Bridges' charges against her husband. Newport society has rallied to the support of Mrs. Bridges, looking upon her as a martyr.

MRS. ADELINA T. BRIDGES

WIFE TO CHARGE ELOPERS FROM BROCKTON WITH DESERTION SEIZED

Newport, R. I., Oct. 29.—Rumors that the name of a prominent society woman will be brought into the divorce suit of Mrs. Adelina T. Bridges, against her husband, the Rev. Thomas Reed Bridges, national known clergyman, set for trial in the Superior Court today, are stirring society and church circles to their very foundations.

The minister said his beautiful wife for divorce on September 12, and a month later she entered a cross suit. It is understood that Mrs. Bridges will charge desertion, non-support and perhaps, cruelty.

Mrs. Bridges has been living at No. 11 Cottage street with her son, Thomas Reed Bridges, Jr., a daughter, Olivia Tower Bridges, is a student at Smith College.

The minister is at present pastor of All Saints Episcopal Church at Mobile, Ala.

It is learned that he will contest the suit on the grounds that it should have been brought in the Alabama courts.

Society is rallying to the support of the beautiful woman, who is characterized by her friends as a martyr.

Bridges has had a mixed career in the ministry. He has been in turn a Congregationalist, Presbyterian, pastor of a New York reformed church, which was later disbanded.

STOKES TO BURN TRIAL GOWN

Taxes of Rich Men Drop by Millions

45 TWINS DELIVERED

Only One Left in $5,000,000 Rank; 21 Pay Taxes on $1,000,000

Washington, Oct. 29.—Statistics of the Internal Revenue Bureau for 1921, just completed, show that taxes were paid to the Federal government on only one net income of $5,000,000 or more.

That was not reported by John D. Rockefeller. In fact, the statistics show the fact, the net income reported by Mr. Rockefeller for 1921 was between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000.

There was a decrease of $1,250,000,000 in the taxes paid for 1921 by individuals and firms, and of 1922, 619,211 in those paid by corporations, making one total loss in revenue for 1921 as compared with 1920, $2,374,439,211.

The total net income of corporations decreased $3,545,697,000. The number of persons and firms making returns fell off by 69,000. Total receipts from this source were $1,420,842,438.

The drop in the taxable Rockefeller income for 1921 caused much surprise, because it had generally been conceded that on of the four net incomes of $3,000,000 more returned for 1920 represented Mr. Rockefeller's income.

FORD TAXES INCREASE.—Henry Ford and his wife and Ed. Ford and his wife were supposed to have reported two of the other record incomes in 1920. The identity of the fourth income remains in doubt.

It is fairly well established by the figures issued today that the incomes of the Ford family and son, Henry Ford, in 1921 as compared with 1920 were $1,000,000 and $4,000,000 each in 1921 as compared with 1920.

While the business depression of 1921 cut deeply into practically all of the larger personal incomes, and also reduced net taxable incomes returned by corporations, the Ford family, with more than $1,000,000 in 1920, the fall in the Rockefeller income from more than $3,000,000 to not more than $1,500,000 was a subject of much comment.

ONE $5,000,000 TAX.—The table showing personal returns for 1921 reveals that the one income of $5,000,000 or more reported was a joint return of husband and wife, sent in from New York State. As John D. Rockefeller is a possible record holder, it is probable that no incomes from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 were reported, but five were between $1,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Of the latter classification four were joint returns made by husband and wife and one a return made by a woman. This also eliminates Mr. Rockefeller.

The table shows that three incomes between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 were reported in 1921. One of these was a joint return of husband and wife, and one made by a man and a woman, and one by a single man. Mr. Rockefeller might be in the group except for the fact that no return of $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 was sent in from New York State.

No incomes were reported from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000, but there were twelve of from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. It is believed that Mr. Rockefeller was among this group of twelve returns, as five of them were reported from New York State by "single" men.

There is much speculation as to the identity of the single income of $5,000,000. Some have expressed the belief that the fortune of J. P. Morgan has increased rapidly and that he may now command the single net income of $5,000,000 or more.

The decline in the number of personal returns on net income of $5,000,000 or more is strikingly shown in the tables prepared by the bureau. Such incomes numbered sixty in 1919, increased to 120 in 1920 and reached their peak in 1921 when they totaled 206. There have since been a steady reduction. They numbered 141 in 1922; 67 in 1919; 69 in 1920; 83 in 1921 and 21 in 1922.

43 CLUB OFFICERS HELD IN CLUB RAIDS

New Bedford, Oct. 28.—A number of liquor law violators were held as a part of a campaign by the police to "dry up" the city, resulting in the arrest of forty-three officers of the clubs charged with maintaining the same.

The raids are ascribed to two causes: A falling out between Mayor Walter H. B. Huntington and Chief of Police Edward P. Dougherty, and recent charges made by Gov. Benjamin Lincoln that the city was run as a place as far as liquor was concerned.

WIFE CALLS STOKES A 'MONSTER'

Will Burn Gown She Wears at Trial; Spurns Dresses as He Paid For

New York, Oct. 29.—Mrs. W. E. Stokes, explained in court today at the resumption of the trial of the divorce suit brought against her by her wealthy husband, why she has worn the same gown each time she has appeared in court.

"There is a popular belief that a woman in a divorce trial must wear a blue serge suit, and that in a murder trial she must wear black," Mrs. Stokes said.

"During the last trial I wore several dresses and wraps that I liked very much, but after it was over I could not bear those things."

"They had become definitely associated with the hideous, monstrous thing, and I wanted to put them out of my sight, just as I want to put this out of my mind as soon as I can."

"This time I vowed I would wear one costume every day until the trial is over, even if it lasts until Christmas, and then I will burn it. That's just what I am doing."

Mrs. W. E. Stokes, sole co-respondent in the trial, resumed the stand today in Justice Mahoney's court, room for the "considerable grilling" prompted by Alex. D. Storer, trial counsel for the plaintiff.

At the end of his testimony, Mrs. Stokes will tell the jury of her whereabouts the days she is alleged by her husband to have been in Wallace's apartments.

ESTABLISHED 1857

BERLIN OUSTS GOVERNMENT OF SAXONY

Berlin, Oct. 23 (U. S. A.)—President Ebert today appointed Dr. Heinze commissary for Saxony after the Saxon government rejected Berlin's ultimatum that it resign.

Dr. Heinze automatically succeeds Premier Zeunzer and the appointment is tantamount to setting aside the Saxon government by the Berlin government.

General Von Muttler, commander of the Reichswehr, has prohibited the assembly of Saxony from sitting tomorrow, says the Central News.

This prevents the members from taking any measure under the protection of the parliamentary immunity act.

Advices today from Freiberg, Saxony, where demonstrators and Federal troops clashed, reported twenty-three persons killed and thirty-one wounded. The first report gave thirteen killed and a score wounded.

LOYD GEORGE EXALTS GEN. JACKSON

Richmond, Va., Oct. 23.—Continuing his tour of Virginia battlefields, David Lloyd George set out today to view the area of operations around the former Confederate capital.

The former British Premier was the guest of John Stewart Bryan, publisher of the Richmond News Leader, and was attended on his tour by Rear-Admiral Cary T. Grayson of Washington and a committee of local citizens.

Displaying a keen interest in the military tactics of Lee and Jackson, Mr. Lloyd George agreed with the ex-Confederate that the World War had developed no military commander like either of these Southern leaders and ventured the opinion that the history of America might have been different had "Stonewall" Jackson lived.

Commenting upon the personal files of the outstanding war chiefs of the conflict between the states and the recent world struggle, Mr. Lloyd George said: "I think the men most like those two Lee and Jackson were Foch and Allenby. There was something about Allenby that very definitely suggested Jackson."

Asked if he did not think the French General Gouraud resembled Jackson, he replied: "Somewhat, but I think there was more of the Lee in him. In fact, I think that is true also of Foch."

ON WAY TO CAMP.

According to her own admission, she, with Elsie Boutlier of No. 74 Boston street, South Boston, were on their way to a camp in Wayland at the time of the crash.

The girls are employed in a lawn shoe factory. In the same factory John R. De Angelo of East Boston, and another whose name the girl does not know, also work.

De Angelo has recently purchased a new sport car, and with his friend invited Miss Edwards and Miss Boutlier to go with him to a camp on the shores of Lake Cochichewick to spend the evening.

They left Lynn shortly after 7 p. m. and had supper in a Boston hotel. The party then started for the camp. When they reached Commonwealth avenue their machine was struck by another automobile owned and operated by David F. Farham.

Miss Edwards was rendered unconscious and taken to City Hospital.

DENIES HAVING LIQUOR.

"John is a good fellow and has all the respect in the world for me," she told an American reporter. "He had just purchased the car and invited me to go for a ride."

"There was no liquor in the party and if there was I never would touch it, and I know that John does not drink."

Mrs. Mary Edwards, mother of Elsie, said: "I have told my daughter that she should not go out riding with men whom she does not know, but she refuses to listen to what I say. I hope this has taught her a lesson."

JUDGE REFUSES "TRUTH TEST" TO MURDERER

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 27.—Judge W. D. Hutchings of the Wyandotte county district has refused to receive a confession as a "truth serum." The refusal came in a motion for a new trial in the case of Frank Stokes, a negro recently convicted of the murder of Orville Stark, a street car conductor.

The sponsors of the drug declared that once a person was under its influence he could tell nothing but the truth. Judge Hutchings held that he would be most likely to tell the truth impressed deeper on his mind, and that the evidence that the impression was about the truth had not been established.

Justice Hutchings deferred decision, however, on the motion for a new trial until Tuesday, at the request of attorneys of Stokes, to permit the attorneys to look up other matters.

Stokes voluntarily allowed himself to be administered to him after his conviction. While under the influence of the drug he denied killing Stark. Judge Hutchings declared that he believed the latter's statement on the negro's mind naturally would be the determination to deny the murder. He told the attorneys he would give very little consideration to that appeal.

Crash'em boy!

by the Veteran Motorist

"LAST fall I went up to the old Polo Grounds to see what modern football was like. That boy of mine had told me that this open game was a different proposition from what we used to play as kids. So up I went with Friend Wife, and the boy, to watch one of the big college games.

"To tell the truth, I went up with a slight feeling of condescension; we old boys always feel that way!

"But I came away thrilled to the core at the spectacle of power—co-ordination—power—drive—dash—I lack words to describe the thrill I got out of that game!

"I got to thinking, driving home, how much Socony Gasoline is like playing football! The product must have the very qualities that make a football team successful. There must be the power to start quickly, the strength to drive ahead, no matter how difficult the task; there must be stamina, alertness to pick the openings, speed for the clear run.

"It is these very qualities that make Socony Gasoline the ideal fuel for both the quick dash, the sudden strave and the long pull incident to all heavy-duty motoring."

PENLESS MAN CLAIMS KING EDWARD OF ENGLAND AS FATHER

COLPUS STARTS LEGAL BATTLE TO ENFORCE RIGHTS

Portland, Me., Oct. 29.—Covart intrigue, the escapades of princes and the dark secrets of European royalty are echoed in the fight to establish the identity of Henry Colpus, who claims to be the natural son of the late King Edward VII of England and the half-brother of King George.

Colpus, penniless, sick and almost dead, was found by the police in an obscure boarding house in Portland. Documents bearing the crest and arms of English royalty and the name of authority appear in the arms of the police to give some credence to the romantic story of a mercurial marriage of King Edward VII to a huxian widow, Eliza Holden.

FOLLOWED MEETING IN FOREST
The marriage, which Colpus asserts was solemnized by a minister of the Church of England, is said to have followed a meeting in Windsor Forest on June 14, 1862.

The applicant married the then Prince of Wales of her own choice, and the ceremony followed. Colpus was born on March 10, 1863.

A few years later, Eliza Holden was married to George Colpus. Ten years after the king's natural son was born, Eliza Holden and Colpus, her husband, died.

Young Colpus came to America with relatives. Here he received a college education, but something made him prefer to earn his living as a butler.

Why Let Film Hide Pearly Teeth?

Learn how folks combat it

Millions still let pretty teeth be clouded by a film. Yet glistening teeth wherever you look show that film can be combated. The way is easy and delightful. A test is free.

Film is unclean
Film is that vicious foe of pearly teeth. When teeth are brushed in old ways, much of it clings and stays. Soon it discolors and forms tiny casts, to make teeth ugly.

Film also holds food particles which ferment and fester acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief causes of pyorrhea. Under old methods, these two caused troubles became alarming in extent.

Starch and acids
Starch is another foe of teeth. It often ferments and forms acids. To fight these foes, Nature puts a starch digestant in the saliva, and makes the saliva alkaline. Soapy tooth pastes reduce these great protections.

Peppermint multiplies that starch digestant, multiplies that alkalinity. Thus every use gives manifold power to these natural protective agents. In all these ways a new dental era has come through these new methods.

Protect the Enamel
Peppermint disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film comb that contains harsh grit.

Then dental science found two ways to efficiently fight film. One disintegrates the film, the other removes it without harmful scouring. Able authorities prove these methods. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them.

Pepsodent
The New-Day Dentifrice
A scientific tooth paste based on modern research. Now advised by leading dentists the world over.

OLIVE TABLETS

Dermatologist Gives Complexion Secret One Ordinary Merciolized Wax

The great secret of keeping the face perfect is to keep off the dust outside, according to a noted skin dermatologist. It is well known that the face is constantly being fouled by dust, dirt, and impurities. When the skin appears like a mirror, the particles do not get in, but immediately they do, being held by the wax on the face.

For $20 an hour she teaches married women how to win, hold and influence their husbands. She has other pupils, but most of her pupils are married.

CANNOT LURE

"I don't know how to lure," she burst out when interviewed. "One hundred per cent, discipline is the rule of my school."

Miss Weed picked up the orange and lavender flowers behind her just to create atmosphere and told all about it.

"People are always jealous of a woman who makes a success, said Evangeline slowly.

"Now, I haven't got a thing to do with this disgraceful Corcoran blackmail case. Imagine calling me a lure."

"I don't know Mrs. Duggan. I've never been with her or seen her in my life. All I know is that we had the same dressmaker. That's the only possible way," she explained.

"Most of my pupils are married. They want to interest their husbands. So many women let themselves go when they become wives and mothers. They want to freshen up, you see."

She made a gesture around the room. The walls were painted in a light shade of green. Bright yellow curtains fluttered at the windows. The only picture was the portrait of a man in a suit, which Miss Weed had posed herself.

"The atmosphere of this room—can't you feel it, too?" she asked. This is where I talk to my pupils. Not together, you understand. We only have private interviews. Well, you see, I find for my type of work individual instruction much more satisfactory. I talk to my pupils about themselves," she added.

"I find out what interests them. I know then what it is that makes them self-conscious and lacking in confidence."

Evangeline admitted that women lacked self-confidence more than men.

ROOM ATMOSPHERE

To INTEREST MEN

"Personality is what women need to interest men. I've had women come in here who would turn to scintillas when they met a man. Most women just know how to talk to the opposite sex. That's the why," rambled there are lots of pretty girls who are popular with women but can't talk to men.

Daubing a touch of powder on her plump nose, Miss Weed continued confidentially. "I don't know a single thing about vamping but—pausing remanently—"well it seems to me that a woman who would be attractive to men ought to be simple and natural. All that talk about the vamp in the light black satin dress with the war pat an inch thick doesn't go at all," she sighed.

"How about some professional advice right now," I suggested.

"$25 an hour," Miss Weed said, casually, without even batting an eyelid. "Of course you can take a half hour lesson at a slight reduction."

BROKEN ENGAGEMENT

"I was engaged to a man in the Black Bay—a millionaire," she confided suddenly. "Now everything is over between us. She burst her head in a detestable lavender crush on me and began to sob all over again."

"When they called me a lure he left me," she sobbed. "He hasn't called me up or written to me since."

She applied the filmy bit of lace to her eyes and straightened up. "I don't care about him any more, now," she said.

"There was a time when I'd cry if a man didn't take me out to dinner. Now I don't care."

Speaking of her fiancé, Evangeline said she was sure that any man who wouldn't stand by a woman at a time wasn't worth a broken engagement.

"Then you don't ever expect to be married?" she asked.

Evangeline Weed, teacher of personality school, named as Blackmail lure, she says she does not even know how to lure, even if she were inclined that way, which she says is not. This is the photo Miss Weed uses on her school circular.

Mrs. Danforth, also known as Fannie Herndon, has testified about Miss Weed. Danforth's relations with Max Korn the "mystery man" among the "famed" lure.

Why? I asked her.

"Why of course," she declared surprised. "Of course I do."

the court room, listening to the testimony of Mrs. Lillian Hardy Reese and Mrs. Fanny Herndon Danforth, who told how he had been "lured" to the Hancock street apartment.

The women testified they had failed to receive money from Korn when it became known to them that he had retained Attorney S. Howard Danforth, former district attorney of Essex County, to represent him.

Korn has moved about the courtroom un molested by reporters, attorneys or others interested in the case. No one has been able to pick him out of the throng—except the women who entered him and perhaps one or two close-mouthed attorneys.

CAILLAUX WARNS OF GREATER WAR

Valenciennes, France. Caillaux, emerging from retirement, gave his views of affairs in general and of France in particular in a lecture here. He would not admit that France should be degraded out of a state of insecurity. He saw no objection to the dismemberment of Germany provided it was the spontaneous work of peoples free to dispose of their own destinies. Otherwise, he said he feared the division would be a compromise behind which would smolder the flames of a new and gigantic conflagration.

Today Donovan was to take the stand and continue the story of his experiences with the "lure" and her "gang." The "gang" included, in addition to Corcoran, his brother, Les, J. Warren Kane, Theodore Beane, Michael Lyons, Harry E. Levenson and Mrs. Theresa Duggan and her husband, Francis Duggan.

MARRIED IN WEST 25,000 YEARS AGO

Santa Barbara, Cal., Oct. 28. (A.P.)—Proof that Paleolithic man lived on the Southern California coast at least 15,000 years ago, is afforded by recent excavations of human remains near here, in the belief of Dr. J. P. Harrington, head of a party of Smithsonian Institution investigators which made the find.

Dr. Harrington said the discovery proved theories formerly held by scientists to be incorrect by at least 15,000 years, and possibly more.

The thickness of the skull, the almost complete absence of forehead, the horrid characteristics of the teeth, and the construction of upper and lower jaws has led to this conclusion.

The discovery, Dr. Harrington said, will bring about a complete revision of the theory now held by scientists as to the date of man's first appearance on the North American continent. Hitherto it has been accepted as a fact that primitive man originally came to North America from Asia, via the Bering Strait, about 10,000 years ago, and gradually worked South.

The discovery of the Santa Barbara man, according to Dr. Harrington, established the fact that man's mound, scene of the excavations and once the site of a fashionable swash hotel, felt the tread of man 15,000 years earlier.

Lawrence, Oct. 28.—Jean Lemay of No. 435 Essex street has been complaining to the police that his wallet containing $166 was lifted as he boarded a car at Manchester, N. H. It was the conductor who from Salem, N. H., the first stopping point, informed the authorities of the loss. At Windham, N. H., a wire was headed to Lemay stating his wallet had been found.

He got off the train at Derry, N. H., next stop, and found his wallet in the railroad officials at Lawrence, asking them to hold the wallet for him. An immediate answer came back, saying his wallet had not been found, and that the officials knew nothing about it.

AN EARLY BIRD
Out in the West tonight for an early start on the night for the Red Sox. The bird will be the grand all around sweepstakes for the Red Sox.

HARVARD ELEVEN MUST IMPROVE TO WIN FROM YALE

COERSED TO DRIVE THE CRIMSON

Harvard's lack lustre football athletes are in for a few very busy weeks. Dartmouth's fiery coach informed the Cambridge coaches that a lot of real work must be done on the Stadium performers, if the Crimson hopes to reflect any glory in the muddy mire of the big three.

Every week we have seen what Coach Fisher has done with the Red Sox. We have had the idea for several years that any team that appears with a snappy method of running off plays would upset the methodical Crimson defense, and we were convinced Saturday that it was a very good idea.

The Fisher players did not know what it was all about. It was all over. The line was out there in front of the game offensive and defensive. The backs were miserably slow in the line of scrimmage. At least half a dozen errors were made in the line of scrimmage. The backs were miserably slow in the line of scrimmage. The backs were miserably slow in the line of scrimmage.

Red Chapman and Drew May Clash at C. A. C.

The air is filled with hostile challenges. Johnny Drew of Worcester and Red Chapman of Dorchester are just now, awaiting in a word of challenge of words.

Chapman recently furnished a sensation when he was over Andy Chaney. Then along came Drew and walked Charley Card's father. Inadvertently Drew scored a knockdown.

Bob McKirley has made an offer for this match. He would like to stage the affair at the Mechanics Building on Nov. 9.

It is believed that a team of champions—which means a lot better than a whole lot of stuff half hearted.

INTERFERENCE IS HARVARD'S WEAKNESS

In Saturday's game at the stadium Dartmouth was superior to the Harvard department. Harvard was out of the game.

Coach Fisher's twenty-seven yards were made by a skillfully executed attack made behind a balanced line, with a deceptive shift following the principal ground play.

Harvard on the other hand, lacked a real offense. Harvard's total yardage was only ninety yards, and that distance twenty-two yards were made by four completed forward passes.

Harvard lacked a punch. Only twice in the whole game did it threaten. First when Capt. Hubbard intercepted a Dartmouth forward pass on the Dartmouth 45 yard line.

Dartmouth's Coach

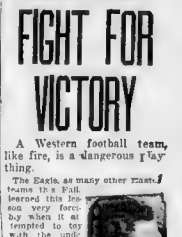

The Tufts players went through the Middlebury battle without injuries. The Medford eleven is one of the few unbeaten eleven in the East.

Coach Casey was pleased with the team's performance. The Brown and Blue team made a good showing.

The Jumbo aerial attack, which provided the winning touchdown in the last few minutes of play, was a sample of Casey's strategy.

Enforcement Difficult

But Mrs. Gifford Finchot Declares at Wellesley That Prohibition Is Here to Stay

Mrs. Gifford Finchot, speaking at the meeting of the School of Local Government and Politics at Wellesley College, declared that prohibition was here to stay.

We agree with her. Great reforms do not turn back wards unless the ebbs tide carries them back carries with it the whole of society.

We ought not be discouraged by the fact that old bootleggers are able to get whiskey. They have to pay pretty high for it, and it is pretty bad stuff. There is no law in the world that you cannot break if you are determined to break it. While enforcement of the prohibition law is difficult, it is no more difficult than the enforcement of the law against trusts, or the law against anything which the politically and financially powerful want to do.

But there is a law which is enforced every day, whose penalties are inexorable; that is the law of nature. Let those who want to, drink the kind of whiskey they are getting and pay the price for it they have to pay, continue to do so. Nature will take care of them.

Let us remember that one of the most bitter charges which the leaders of the people of India make against the British government is that they permit the poor people of India to continue to use opium while they prohibit the use of it to the English people.

Is that not exactly what is happening in this country? Our laws save our middle class and our working class from the evil of drink and they let the well-to-do and the old bootleggers get their whiskey if they can and pay the price for it both in health and in money.

The privilege is not enjoyed by women, but by the working people and our middle class who are being saved from the curse of liquor.

Torture of Animals

A Chance for Kind Hearts

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Kind ladies and gentlemen that are agitated about vivisection in the interest of science, carried on to save the lives of human beings, and of animals also, might devote part of their attention to the catching of animals in traps.

Twenty millions of animals are tortured every year. And this does not take into account the hundreds of millions of worms, frogs and other creatures immortal alive on fishhooks for the amusement of boys and men.

It is suggested that trappers be compelled to use traps that kill the animals caught. One thing is certain. The anti-vivisectionists might, if they chose, work on a very big scale rather than interfere with science and its painless operations, conducted under complete anaesthesia, all done in the battle against disease.

Unscientific, unauthorized vivisection and, above all, vivisection by school children, should be stopped, of course.

Our Slipping Earth

It Slides, We With It

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Professor Osborn announces positive proof that America and Asia were once linked together by solid land. That made it easy for the Mongolian ancestors of our red Indians to come over, also the animals to spread over the earth.

It is a fact also that England and the Continent once were connected by land. You may see here and there the wide-headed, black-haired descendant of the Baasques, that walked with dry feet from Spain to England in the distant past.

The fact is that the whole solid surface of the earth is like the scum on a pond or the grease on cold soap, floating and breaking up occasionally here and there. The light surface of the earth, resting on an inconceivably hard inner core, moves about as our milk might move about on a plate if you shook the plate a little. But the motions are slow; men don't live long; they call a hundred thousand years "a long time."

Mrs. Josie K. Stewart of Cleveland, who went to New York to win the prize of twenty-five hundred dollars offered to the first person who submitted positive evidence of the receipt of spirit messages, has gone home without the cash.

Mrs. Stewart's failure to satisfy the committee that her celestial correspondence was the real thing may be partly due to an adverse prejudice created in the minds of New Yorkers by the fraudulent judicial state-writing recently detected on a part of the well-known political medium, Murphy and Foley.

They All Fight

We, Also, Have Done It

Human beings are queer animals. And in the language of Judge Landis' brother, "if they did spring from the monkey, they didn't spring very far."

The Germans, having been beaten in the fight with France and some other countries, are now busy fighting and killing each other. They are breaking up their empire in small pieces, which will make it convenient for others to chew the small pieces. Because of different opinions in politics, economics and religions, they are shooting each other.

This, however, is no German specialty. We had a taste of it here in the sixties; every nation has it.

MORE ROOM IN PRISONS NEEDED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The population of Federal prisons is increasing so rapidly that more housing space is badly needed, according to a report submitted to Attorney-General Daugherty by Robert H. Voase, who also recommended that he be taken to provide underemployment for all able-bodied prisoners.

In the three principal Federal prisons—Alcatraz, Leavenworth and McNeil Island—and in the general Federal Government institutions there were confined on June 30, 1923, a total of 7,046 prisoners, an increase of 470 over June 30, 1922.

Blind Woman in Need

Editor Helping Hand:
I am writing this for a poor blind woman who is badly in need of a warm winter coat, size 40, and is quite tall. She showed me her coat, and it was a thin cotton coat and not what she needs in this cold climate. I told her of all the good work your readers were doing, and I would write and see what could be done.

WORDS FROM THE LIPS OF WISE MEN

WRITE it on your heart that every day is the best day in the year.

Believe it or not, that mountains change their places, but believe not that men change their dispositions.

A little mind courts authority, to illustrate its puny self.

Too much caution, too much rashness, both alike are harmful.

It's better to make your pleasures than to buy them.

It's not much good being a careful saver if you're a careless spender.

There is anyone who has a cheap radio set they don't want. Please give it to me, as I am so lonesome with no girls to play with. I am fond of music and reading.

Aged Woman Wants Case

Editor Helping Hand:
Can you help me to get a case? I am an elderly woman, seventy years old, and lame, and cannot walk without a cane. I do not much want a cane, but cannot afford it. At present I am using a stick cut in the woods. I am tall, and need one three feet and two or three inches long.

HE CAN'T GET TWELVE BILLIONS FROM A JUNK PILE

By Herbert Kaufman

THE highest bid received for the U. S. S. Constitution when offered at scrap-heap auction was $5,000. Apparently what France got out of Germany if Poincare continues to beach, year fast-breaking ship of State.

Meanwhile, Great Britain, spurred by other co-redditors, strives to interest America in wresting a common asset from that defiant fanatic's exclusive control.

Even Louis Louchere, alarmed by the handwriting on the wall, begins to fear lest his dog-in-the-manger Premier will lose a bone in the teeth to snatch at an empty shadow.

The Quai d'Orsay, however, according to late cables, blindly disregards popular opinion and still holds out for a twelve-and-a-half-billion-dollar settlement.

At this writing no international commission for the Ruhr will be acceptable, except under condition that any investigating committee shall acknowledge the superior authority of the Reparations Commission and each nation participating in such a survey binds itself to majority recommendations.

Meet The Nice Spider

STEP INTO THE WEB, LITTLE GOLDEN FLY, AND MEET THE NICE ENTENTE SPIDER.

Caught in the meshes of such a solemn agreement to cancel war debts, putatively giving Germany benefits of the concessions and actually putting the money in French pockets.

The only role we dare in safety assume is the part of an uncompromised and independent counsellor, delivering no pledges and left free to protect outstanding foreign loans to the last dollar.

Provided a way may be found to perpetuate our present happy isolation, we may consent to study the facts, diagnose the desperate case and suggest a remedy; but we won't risk another drop of our blood in a transfusion operation for the strengthening of Europe, guarantee its unpaid bills, nor foot the expense of incompetent diplomatic quacks whose malpractice has added economic gangrene to a once curable wound.

On eight million plurality for aloofness and not one cent for intrigue! Hold fast, Mr. Coolidge!

Miracles and Parables

Lloyd George catches the fortunes of civilization to the combined moral influence of Great Britain and the United States. He's certain that we can promote peace anywhere without flarebacks. There isn't a nation in Europe that would think of going to war with us.

Having so neutrally mended our own affairs, let's mind 'em some more.

Dr. William Mayo, celebrated surgeon, forecasts the disappearance of midgits. General Tom Thumb might have been transformed into a Hercules by doses of thyroid secretions and iodine.

One stunted child grew seven inches in a single year on the magic diet.

H. G. Wells thought he was pulling a whepper when he furnished fiction with a giant-making food.

In less than a decade it's on the druggist's shelf!

About one and one-half per cent, of drafted men from mountainous districts and the Great Lakes region were too glib for military service. It won't happen again. We'll give them the iodine they require hereafter.

The Japanese, consistent fish and seaweed eaters, like sailors, never have goitre. Unbalanced rations are responsible for half of human disorders, as unbalanced leadership is to blame for more than half the disorders in which errant humans are engaging.

Contrary to expectation, the streets aren't filled with legless, armless veterans. Amputation is seldom necessary since it was found that a piece of healthy bone from one part of the body can be successfully grafted to another.

Nowadays, Sawbones removes a healthy skin section to replace a diseased area. Material for a parable which With Europe inviting us to deliver ourselves for the repair of her rotting systems.

Mexico Moves Toward Canada

Lots of rainbows if you look for them. Airmen refused in flight pitch up the Mexican border and carry it within twelve hours' distance of the Canadian line.

The truth isn't in maps; space isn't measured by rods and paces; forget ground mileage, remember clock surveys. Seattle's traveling heading toward the Atlantic; the stretch between Manhattan and San Francisco is a mere sun disk. Calculate progress accordingly and plan markets with sky-fighter in view.

Time wasters to the sidings—clear the track for express trains of thought. Crowd your crops; force dawdling areas to reveal a diseased area. Material for a parable which With Europe inviting us to deliver ourselves for the repair of her rotting systems.

Two dollars will grow soon where one grew before. Opportunity can't halt for laggards. Move fast!

Where Shall The Trail End

The Department of Justice is assuredly not collecting grass on its feet. Note how prompt Attorney-General Daugherty takes action in the Forbes case.

Prosecution won't wait upon further disclosures of graft and fraud in the Veterans' Bureau.

Washington announces intention to proceed without compromise or quarter against all persons who have participated in the reputed derelictions. Neither rank nor influence shall shield the guilty.

But why wasn't the festering condition looked into earlier? The American Legion, the Washington Herald and Colonel Hines have been tugging at Federal coat-tails for months. Were there powers behind the throne to block their previous effort?

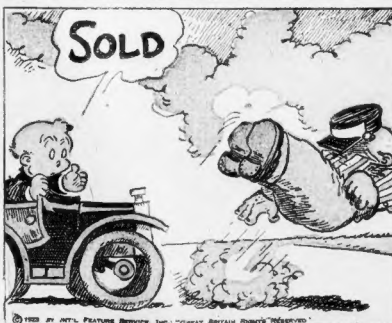

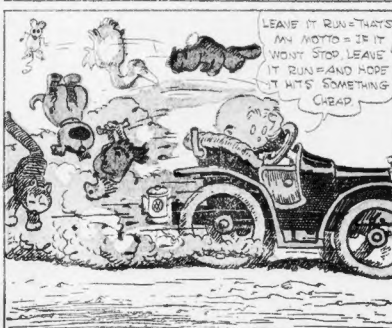

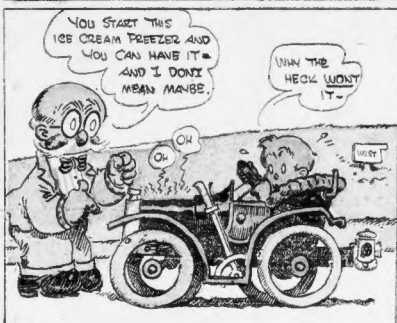

Are we at the beginning of the end of the sordid trail? And how comes it that the boasted efficiency of reorganized national administration didn't include the close supervision of a bureau spending more money annually than Congress netted in long ago appropriated for our total overhead?

New Glories for Dogs and (Good) Mules

"Cannonball," Mrs. J. Griswold Webb's Pal Mule, Distinguished Himself by Winning His Race at the Dutchess County Fair, New York.

Here Are Real Heart-Throb Animal Stories Right Out of Life, with the Truth About "Gallert" and "Garry" and "Raggedy Ann."

"Strongheart," the Eldest Police Dog, Who Watches the World from Hundreds of Silver Verruca.

Governor, Master, of Maine Honored the Memory of His Irish Butler, "Garry," by Lowering the State Flag to Half Mast.

Field of battle—a fitting death for any soldier who won first place in everything she entered. The battery is broken-hearted over her tragic death!

Then the solemn notes of "taps" and a farewell volley. All in all, Raggedy Ann, the burro, was given every honor in death that might have been paid any soldier, save only that the Stars and Stripes were not placed upon her coffin.

And this is one striking tale to become public concerning affection now being lavished upon mules.

That the veggie for the mule companion is universal was further proved recently when the fashionable and exclusive sets of many Eastern cities visited the Dutchess County Fair at Rhinebeck, N. Y. Many daughters and wives of wealth attended the fair with one end of a leash in their hands and the other connecting with a pet burro or donkey. So much a recognized part of the occasion did the animal become that a mule race was arranged eventually in which Miss Margaret Miller, daughter of the former Governor of New York State, drove against Mrs. J. Griswold Webb.

"Cannonball," the peppery-tempered Webb entry, won the race.

As for dogs—of course there never has been a time when they were not the most beloved and cherished of pets. But very recently a new quality seems to have invaded the relationship of man and dog.

No sweeter story of a dog ever will be told than that of the super-dog "Wolf," in honor of whom one may paraphrase the words of the Great Teacher in all reverence: "Greater love hath no heart than that it give its own life to save another's."

Wolf was the son of Lad, the famous collie who figures in innumerable dog stories by Albert Payson Terhune. Almost as distinguished as his father, Wolf was beloved by every man, woman and child in Pompton Lakes where the Terhunes estate stretches.

Wolf trotted over to the railroad station one day to watch the train come along. As the engine ground and whistled into view, a mangy little tramp dog began to cross the rails and stopped in the middle of the track, bewildered and horror-stricken.

A human of intelligence and breeding could not have hesitated for the fraction of a minute over the matter of whose life would be the more valuable—a wild matter of economics, after all.

But not the splendid collie. With one bound he was upon the track. His beautiful head flashed—and the car was lifted bodily and flung to safety. But the engine hit the hero, and his life went out while those who saw cheered and sobbed.

He lies under the sod in a pleasant corner of the Terhune estate, with a bit of marker over his grave, upon it a fitting inscription for a monarch among his kind.

Another less famous collie, "Old Snap," who shares the home of Francis Madden in Escalante Springs, Missouri, became the unwelcome king of that town when he saved the life of Harold Madden.

In common with all sixteen-year-olds, Harold likes to ride. Accordingly he mounted one of the farm mules for a canter, after the day's plowing was finished. But Missouri mules are Missouri mules, and the one the boy had chosen began to lunge. There was a streak of black and gold and white across the barnyard and something very like a thunderbolt hurled itself at the writhing. The dog caught it first between his teeth, and there he hung until the mule became quiet and the boy was able to dismount.

Perhaps the most striking bit of glory paid to a dog was the tribute Governor Barker of Maine offered his dead friend Garry, an Irish setter. In the face of criticism and hostility, Governor Barker ordered the State flag on the capitol at half mast during the week burial.

Members of the American Legion and of the Grand Army of the Republic protested at what they deemed abuse of the flag. But the Governor replied that Garry was the only friend he had known throughout his entire life. Since he is a bachelor and of a disposition which does not readily make friends, his acquaintance, thus the flag remained dipped—a symbol of the grief that was in the heart of a man who worked below it. However, Garry left him something besides memory—a year-old son called Garry Second, to provide comfort and understanding.

The Way Battery F, of the Twelfth Field Artillery, at Fort Sam Houston, Gave "Raggedy Ann" a Military Funeral.

spoke gently and rubbed her nose, she had no special little trick of response. You must fancy Raggedy Ann roaming at will round the fort. Born on Armistice day, she became the burro mascot of Battery F, Twelfth Field Artillery, and happy was the boy in khaki whom she singled out for any sort of nose-nuzzling or nipping with her sharp little teeth.

And only second in favor to the official mascot was her pal and constant companion, Verdun, a sleek Missouri mule. Verdun was accepted as a friend and protector for Raggedy Ann, being several years larger and many times more powerful than the burro.

It was on an evening not long ago that the two started out on a tour of the fort, looking for sociability, sugar-cubes, and whatever else might offer. They brought up in the vicinity of the kitchens—round by the back door, where are stationed the garbage pails of tin holding delicious and interesting things.

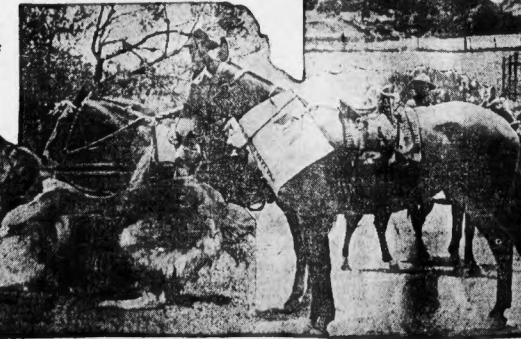

No one knew the complete story of the tragedy.

It thundered down upon the pals in snorts and squeals and flying hoofs—the entire company of quartermaster pack mules. Verdun whirled and plunged into the mob. He struggled gallantly and well, while help came from the Quartermaster Corps. But Raggedy Ann, the burro, had gone down in the stampede and his head had been trampled and slashed from her body.

There was mourning about Fort Sam Houston that night. Then Lieutenant Charles M. Thirkield of Battery F offered a plan. They'd give the mascot a real military funeral—if the boys liked the idea. Did they like it? They'd tell the world—every last one of them!

"Raggedy Ann" in the Days When She Was the Mascot of Battery F.

"Wolf," Patriotic Hero of Many Dog Stories, with His Master, Albert Payson Terhune.

The Grave of the Courageous Hound, "Gallert," Near London, Which English Dog Lovers Have Made a Shrine.

There was a funeral procession next day from the place beneath the great tree where the dead friend of the fort lay in state to the grave on Farningham Field. Verdun moved slowly in the procession, ears pointed forward as if listening for the "click-click" of little hoofs never again to delight his heart. Upon his back was the reversed saddle and round his neck the battery guidon.

At the grave little Virginia Jean Thirkield, small daughter of the battery, placed a wreath upon the coffin. Lieutenant Thirkield spoke: "Raggedy Ann died on the

Medbury Says

By John P. Medbury

MEN who have to work hard for a living don't realize how unlucky they are until they hear about the guys who get paid a regular salary for playing away from home.

ONE father was so anxious to get his wayward son out of town that he gave him ten thousand dollars and told him to pay half of it for transportation.

HE got as far as he could on the money and then he did man sent him five thousand more so he could go further away.

HE father didn't care where he went to as long as it would take a special delivery letter three months to reach him.

EVERY time the son wrote more money he wired his father and threatened to come home.

ANOTHER bird who was sent out of town by his father wrote them a letter and said he'd been staying away from home for three years for fifty dollars a week and thought it was time he got a raise.

HIS parents didn't like to give it to him but figured it was worth it.

THEY answered him right away and said if he'd promise not to return for thirty years more they'd give him a bonus.

THIS guy is so convinced he thinks his folks do it out of devotion. He goes around bragging to everybody how crazy they are about him.

SOME men are that way. Just because you don't kill them, they get the swollen head.

FATHERS shouldn't worry about their sons. Your boy will never get to the moon before he's as old as he knows where there's a telegraph office.

BUT if he ever skips a month without writing home for funds, you can rest assured that he has reformed or something terrible has happened to him.

ONCE-OVERS

BE DEFINITE; DO NOT LEAVE YOUR FRIENDS IN DOUBT.
(Copyright, 1923, International Feature Service, Inc.)

It has been intimated to you that it would be pleasing to your good friend if you would do something you both would enjoy. Instead of accepting the proposition definitely you set off as if you did not hear it.

Consequently you have a feeling of uncertainty as to your course of action or you cause others to feel that you positively reject it.

Then when you have done your part toward the object in planning in view of the fact that your friend is concerned, you are surprised and annoyed to find that you are the only one who has made a move in the desired direction.

Why should you be pleased? Did you lead anyone to think the proposition was pleasing to you? No, you did not and you are finding out that all are not good and ready, to your chagrin.

Be definite. If you have a proposition, say so or if you want time to think it over say that, but do not give the idea of indifference unless you mean it.
